

OUR PROGRAMS

門 - GATEWAY PROGRAM

The program is primarily designed for undergraduate or graduate students arriving from Chinese universities. The curriculum covers one semester. All classes and study materials are exclusively in English. The objective of the program is to give an introduction to the most important areas of jurisprudence, international relations, political science and industrial relations. The courses present the relevant field from a European – and where appropriate, global – comparative perspective with a special emphasis on Hungarian experience. Practical courses will be offered on legal English so as to improve students' vocabulary, linguistic and communication abilities.

COMPARATIVE LAW PROGRAM

From 2010, the Comparative Law Program aims to facilitate a fruitful academic experience in Szeged for visiting students from abroad by offering them the opportunity of obtaining a certificate after completing courses selected from a wide range of options. Courses offered in the framework of the Program are taught in English, French or German by our University staff as well as French, German, British and American visiting professors. The Program consists of compulsory and optional courses. A certificate will be awarded to those who obtain the required 30 credit points by completing at least two compulsory and three optional courses.

DRESDEN-SZEGED IP LLM PROGRAM

The University of Szeged and the Technical University of Dresden (TUD) have reached an agreement in 2013 to offer a semester long training for LLM students of the TUD in Szeged. Classes focus on intellectual property law, and provide a comparative insight into copyright, patent and trademark law in English and German language.

GERMAN LAW SCHOOL

The German Law School offers a German law module for undergraduates and a Master's programme (LL.M) in German legal translation. In both programmes students learn valued underpinning knowledge of German law. Course participants also become familiar with argumentation techniques and gain an understanding of the mind-set requirements. The translation programme offers a degree not only for jurists but for all university graduates.

OUR PROGRAMS

DOCTORAL SCHOOL OF LAW AND POLITICAL SCIENCES

The Doctoral School was established in 2002. Our Doctoral School provides doctoral studies in the frame of 9 alternative training programmes. Thus, not only graduated lawyers, but graduates of industrial relations, social security, public administration, international relations or political sciences might be admitted to the Doctoral School. A PhD programme in English is offered for international students. Both professors of the Law School and well-known foreign guest-professors deliver lectures. The number of our PhD students is increasing year by year.

MASTER IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS IN FRENCH LANGUAGE

In its scientific discipline, our French language program was the first to be accredited in Hungary. It offers two specializations: European Studies, awarded by a double degree with Political Science Institute of Lille or University Babes-Bolyai of Cluj, and Europe-Africa Development, awarded by a double degree with University Senghor of Alexandria. The aim of the programme is to provide an exceptional training for European, African and Hungarian students. Since courses are held in French and owing to the vast international network of our Faculty, students are able to absorb knowledge and skills from native speaker professors and experts.

For decades, it has been a priority of the Faculty of Law at the University of Szeged to provide students with the opportunity of becoming familiar with legal systems other than that of Hungary. In today's globalised world lawyers face the challenge of the application of an ever widening set of legal rules.

Our Faculty answered this challenge by offering transnational and comparative courses of its own as well as initiating cooperation with universities from all around the world.

Students at our Faculty can now choose from a variety of foreign legal programs where they will gain in-depth knowledge of the legal systems of France, Germany and the United States with the assistance of dedicated visiting professors from the countries involved.

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

The Faculty of Law offers a comprehensive curriculum on each of its trainings, including both foundational lectures and innovative seminars. All the classes are held by members of the Faculty or practicing lawyers (attorney, judges and prosecutors), as well as international scholars and visiting lecturers from all across the globe. Modules allow for students and lecturers to meet in a multicultural environment to boost the efficiency of studying and research.

"Szeged is with its location close to other countries and the international atmosphere due to many international students the perfect place for travelling, and also for learning about different cultures. Especially the wine festival in the summer time is one of the highlights that definitely shouldn't be missed!"

(Lan Mai Tran, University of Hanover)

STUDENT-ORIENTED PROGRAMMING

The curriculum of the Faculty of Law is designed to allow students to learn through classroom education, research and practice-oriented programs, including moot court competitions. Students might have a chance to contact law firms, government agencies and non-profit organizations to be an intern for a short period. The flexibility of studying is also evidenced by the freedom that allows students to enroll to modules of other faculties.

"My experience in Szeged was incredible! A unique opportunity to travel through an unknown part of my own continent, a deep EU citizenship experience, a comparative approach of my studies through different legal systems, a real life changing, and a social discovery! I keep contacts and very good memories of my too-short time in Hungary, but I will definitely go back there; it is also a peaceful place to enjoy life."

CONFERENCES AND PRESENTATIONS

The Faculty of Law hosts multiple conferences and presentations, as well as organizes brown bag lectures each year. These programs allow notable domestic or international scholars to introduce their research, or allow the discussion of topics related to the most recent social and political sciences.

RESEARCH OPPORTUNITIES

Research is not solely reserved for the members of the Faculty. Students have a chance to get involved into the research activity of professors. Indeed, the student research groups of the departments and institutes allow students to test their writing and presentation skills on the national biennial student competitions. The intellectually stimulating research communities make it possible for both professors and students to study the given field of social or political science in a critical way.

GLOBAL ENGAGEMENT

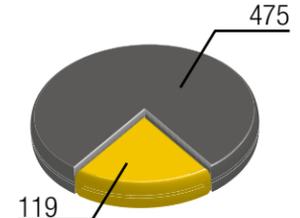

The Faculty of Law is keen on opening its doors as wide as possible. Thus the number of Erasmus and other bi- or multilateral agreements allow nationals of more than 30 countries to visit Szeged for short or long-term studies. Further, scholarships like Stipendium Hungaricum provide a means for an even broader scope of students to choose Szeged as their next destination. Vice versa, our students have a chance to visit over 100 universities across the globe for purposes of studying and research, as well as to participate on international moot court competitions.

"Participating on the European Moot Court Competition in Greece with determined and professionally selected contestants of my age was the best experience I've ever had. Putting all my efforts in the 2-month long preparation with my teammates, becoming real friends and having the time of my life when travelling together was priceless."

INFRASTRUCTURE

The Faculty of Law has its own computer law ("Cabinet") with over 80 fully equipped machines that allow users to browse the web and several notable research databases. Law books are served in the central library of the University, only a few hundred meters away from the law school building.

"Szeged was simply amazing! I made new friends, I travelled to new countries, I learnt a lot about myself and my course!"

(Sergio Sanchez, Complutense University of Madrid)

"Attending the University of Szeged Law School was genuinely one of the best decisions I ever made! Most of my peers went to the usual universities in Australia, America, France, Italy or Germany, but I wanted to go somewhere completely different; something unique to talk about with potential employers; somewhere I could honestly say that I had learnt new things and experienced a beautiful new culture and way of life! I was not disappointed at all."

(Jonathan Clarke, University of Exeter)
